

ABSTRACT

The invention concerns a process for coating with a polymer a fiber reinforced plastic component to be painted, wherein a prepolymer is modified with electrically conductive substances, extruded and applied upon the substrate, wherein the prepolymer in a first step is pre-cured and in a second step is final cured by action of thermal radiation and/or electromagnetic radiation.